Organizers:

University of Malaya (UM), Malaysia

First Institute of Oceanography (FIO), SOA

Recommendations of the Fifth China-ASEAN Countries Marine Cooperation Forum

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, 16-17 December 2017

1. The Fifth China-Southeast Asian Countries Marine Cooperation Forum was held in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia on the 16th -17th December 2017 as part of an ongoing effort to strengthen the cooperation among China and Southeast Asian countries in the field of marine science and technology. The forum is jointly hosted by the State Oceanic Administration of China (SOA) and the Ministry of Science, Technology and Innovation of Malaysia . This forum is jointly organized between the University of Malaya and the First Institute of Oceanography, China. More than 100 delegates from various organization related to marine affairs of China, Cambodia, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, Vietnam, Philippines and Brunei Darussalam,. The list of participants is appended as Annex I.
2. Four sessions were deliberated in this forum and they include: 1) Marine environment monitoring and services; 2) Marine biodiversity and ecosystem protection; 3) Marine biotechnology and blue economy and 4) Discussion on future marine cooperation. The program is attached as Annex II.
3. The forum shared strong common interests in areas including: ocean forecasting system (OFS) and disaster mitigation; influence of anthropogenic activities on marine environment; marine pollution and protection; climate change and climate-related phenomena such as monsoon; marine endangered species, biodiversity and ecosystem conservation; blue economy development and marine spatial planning. It underscored the importance of promoting and enhancing collaborative research and development activities in marine science and technology among Southeast Asian Countries and China. The forum highlighted the essential role of marine scientific knowledge in addressing the aforementioned challenges to sustainable development, and further stressed the need to develop collaboration among Southeast Asian countries and China, particularly in ocean related issues in the Southeast Asian region and China.
4. During the opening ceremony, the launching of 'First Institute of Oceanography (FIO), SOA and the Institute of Ocean and Earth Sciences (IOES), University of Malaya (UM) Joint Centre of Marine Science & Technology' at the Bachok Marine Research Station was held.
5. The following recommendations were proposed in the spirit of enhancing marine science and technology cooperation:
 - a) Explore to establish a regional marine environmental portal to effectively share knowledge and information on marine science and technology.
 - b) To strengthen further collaborative research and development activities with a sustainable research funding mechanism in place.

- c) To increase capacity building especially gender equality with the aim of enhancing the knowledge-base, sharing expertise and promoting the transfer of skills and technology for sustainable development of marine and coastal resources
- d) Promote research in various flagship programmes including:
 - i) Marine environmental joint observation, monitoring, simulation and forecasting.
 - ii)) Risk reduction and marine disaster mitigation system to be shared between China and the Southeast Asian countries.
 - iii) Sustainable marine ecosystems and biodiversity.
 - iv) Marine biotechnology and Blue Economy.

It is further recommended that effective communication systems to the stakeholders and public in China and Southeast Asian countries should be established, to facilitate the sharing of benefits and information arising from the cooperation established under this forum. Pragmatic cooperation in marine governance for the common good of the region is also encouraged.

To explore mechanisms to strengthen the cooperation and coordination under regional and global auspices to enhance knowledge and capacity in the governance of our common ocean.

It is agreed that the next forum in 2018 will be hosted by China.
